Built by Windy between 2005 and 2011, the Windy 32 Grand Tornado replaced the popular Tornado 31 and marked a shift toward more relaxed, luxury cruising. While the Tornado 31 was designed mainly for watersports, the 32 Grand Tornado focuses on comfort and sunbathing.

Like other Windy models such as the 34 Khamsin and 28 Ghibli, it features a cockpit designed around sunbeds. A standout feature is the electrically operated sliding seat-back, which allows the seating to quickly convert into a large sunbed or a mix of seating and sunbed at the push of a button.

At 9.72 metres long, the boat offers surprisingly flexible accommodation. It includes a full-width aft cabin and a separate bathroom set away from the main saloon, giving a sense of space and privacy. The boat is also known for its precise handling, strong performance at speed, and excellent stability.

The long cockpit is ideal for relaxing and socialising, with wraparound seating for six people and space for outdoor dining. A large folding table can be adjusted, folded down to save space, or stored under the port-side seat when not in use.

Overall, the Windy 32 Grand Tornado is a well-designed luxury sports cruiser that combines comfort, performance, and versatility.
